Reading and writing report card comments by grade

Find the student's grade band and pick two or three skills. For each, use a strength or on track line, then at most one next step and one thing to try at home. Swap [Name] and "their" for the student, and change anything that isn't true of them.

Grades K–2

Phonics and sounding out

- STRENGTH [Name] knows all their letter sounds and blends them quickly to read new words.
- STRENGTH [Name] sounds out unfamiliar words confidently, including words where two letters make one sound, such as sh and ee.
- ON TRACK [Name] knows most letter sounds and is learning to blend them to read short words.
- ON TRACK [Name] sounds out simple words and is learning the sounds that two letters make together, such as sh, ch and ee.
- NEXT STEP Our next step is sounding out longer words, using the letter patterns we've been learning, which we're practicing in short daily phonics lessons.
- AT HOME At home, you could point to words on signs and packets and sound them out together.

Sight words

- STRENGTH [Name] reads all their sight words straight away and spells many of them correctly.
- STRENGTH [Name] recognizes a wide range of sight words instantly, which makes their reading smooth.
- ON TRACK [Name] reads many sight words instantly and is learning new ones each week.
- ON TRACK [Name] recognizes the sight words we've practiced and is starting to spell them.
- NEXT STEP Our next step is reading and spelling sight words such as said, was and they, which we're practicing with quick games and flashcards.
- AT HOME At home, you could play a quick game of spotting sight words in a favorite book.

Reading aloud

- STRENGTH [Name] reads aloud smoothly and with expression, changing their voice for different characters.
- STRENGTH [Name] reads familiar books fluently and corrects their own mistakes.
- ON TRACK [Name] reads simple books aloud and is becoming smoother each week.
- ON TRACK [Name] reads familiar books with growing confidence and is starting to correct their own mistakes.
- NEXT STEP Our next step is reading smoothly rather than word by word, which we're practicing by rereading familiar books.
- AT HOME At home, you could take turns reading pages of a favorite book aloud.

Understanding what they read

- STRENGTH [Name] retells stories in order with lots of detail.
- STRENGTH [Name] answers questions about a story and explains their answers using the pictures and words.
- ON TRACK [Name] retells the main events of a story and is learning to include more detail.
- ON TRACK [Name] answers simple questions about a story and is learning to explain their answers.
- NEXT STEP Our next step is retelling a story in order, with a beginning, middle and end, which we're practicing with story maps and retelling games.
- AT HOME At home, you could ask [Name] to tell you what happened in a story after you read it together.

Vocabulary

- STRENGTH [Name] uses interesting new words when speaking and writing.
- STRENGTH [Name] asks about new words and remembers them.
- ON TRACK [Name] is learning new words from their reading and is starting to use them in their writing.
- ON TRACK [Name] asks about new words and is getting better at working out their meaning.
- NEXT STEP Our next step is working out the meaning of new words and using them in their own writing, which we're practicing by collecting new words from our class reading.
- AT HOME At home, you could talk about interesting words you come across together and try using them in conversation.

Reading habits and choosing books

- STRENGTH [Name] reads widely and chooses books across different genres.
- STRENGTH [Name] is enthusiastic about books and shares recommendations with the class.
- ON TRACK [Name] reads regularly and is trying books from new genres.
- ON TRACK [Name] is building a regular reading habit and is starting to choose books with more confidence.
- NEXT STEP Our next step is reading a little every day and talking about the books we share, which we're practicing with time for independent reading and book recommendations.
- AT HOME At home, you could share a bedtime story every day and let [Name] choose some of the books.

Handwriting

- STRENGTH [Name] forms their letters correctly and writes neatly on the line.
- STRENGTH [Name] writes clearly with well-formed letters and spaces between words.
- ON TRACK [Name] forms most letters correctly and is learning to keep them on the line.
- ON TRACK [Name] is becoming more consistent with letter sizes and spaces between words.
- NEXT STEP Our next step is forming letters correctly, starting each one in the right place, which we're practicing with short daily handwriting practice.
- AT HOME At home, you could write shopping lists or cards together, so [Name] can practice letters in a real task.

Spelling

- STRENGTH [Name] spells many common words correctly and uses their sounds to spell new words.
- STRENGTH [Name] uses phonics well to spell new words in a way that can be easily read.
- ON TRACK [Name] spells simple words by sounding them out and is learning common spelling patterns.
- ON TRACK [Name] writes words that can be read by sounding them out and is learning to spell sight words.
- NEXT STEP Our next step is spelling common words correctly, using the sounds we've learned, which we're practicing with daily phonics and spelling games.
- AT HOME At home, you could play spelling games such as I spy with sounds.

Sentences and punctuation

- STRENGTH [Name] writes clear sentences with capital letters and periods.
- STRENGTH [Name] writes in full sentences and uses joining words such as and, but and because.
- ON TRACK [Name] writes simple sentences and is learning to use capital letters and periods each time.
- ON TRACK [Name] is starting to write more than one sentence and to use joining words such as because.
- NEXT STEP Our next step is using a capital letter and a period in every sentence, which we're practicing with daily sentence writing.
- AT HOME At home, you could ask [Name] to write a sentence or two about the day, such as a caption for a photo.

Planning and organizing writing

- STRENGTH [Name] writes stories with a clear beginning, middle and end.
- STRENGTH [Name] plans their ideas before writing and puts events in order.
- ON TRACK [Name] puts events in order and is learning to add an ending to their stories.
- ON TRACK [Name] is learning to plan their ideas with pictures before writing.
- NEXT STEP Our next step is planning a story with a beginning, middle and end, which we're practicing with story maps and picture plans.
- AT HOME At home, you could make up stories together at bedtime, with a beginning, middle and end.

Ideas and detail

- STRENGTH [Name] writes imaginative stories full of interesting ideas.
- STRENGTH [Name] adds describing words to bring their writing to life.
- ON TRACK [Name] has lots of ideas and is learning to add more detail.
- ON TRACK [Name] writes about their own experiences and is starting to add describing words.
- NEXT STEP Our next step is adding describing words to make their writing more interesting, which we're practicing by looking at examples from books we read together.
- AT HOME At home, you could talk about the pictures in books together and find describing words.

Grades 3–5

Reading aloud

- STRENGTH [Name] reads aloud fluently and with expression, pausing at punctuation.
- STRENGTH [Name] reads longer books smoothly and at a good pace, which helps them follow the story.
- ON TRACK [Name] reads aloud accurately and is working on adding expression.
- ON TRACK [Name] reads at a steady pace and is learning to pause at punctuation.
- NEXT STEP Our next step is reading aloud with expression and pausing at periods and commas, which we're practicing with paired reading and rereading short passages.
- AT HOME At home, you could listen to [Name] read aloud for ten minutes and take turns reading pages.

Understanding what they read

- STRENGTH [Name] summarizes chapters clearly and picks out the main ideas.
- STRENGTH [Name] answers questions about a text in detail and backs up their answers with examples from the book.
- ON TRACK [Name] understands the main events in a story and is learning to summarize them in a few sentences.
- ON TRACK [Name] answers questions about a text and is starting to back up answers with examples.
- NEXT STEP Our next step is summarizing a chapter in a few sentences, which we're practicing with short summaries after each chapter.
- AT HOME At home, you could ask [Name] to sum up a chapter in three sentences at bedtime.

Reading between the lines

- STRENGTH [Name] reads between the lines, working out how characters feel and why.
- STRENGTH [Name] makes thoughtful predictions and explains them with clues from the text.
- ON TRACK [Name] makes sensible predictions and is learning to work out how characters feel.
- ON TRACK [Name] is starting to read between the lines and find clues in the text.
- NEXT STEP Our next step is working out how characters feel and why, using clues in the text, which we're practicing through class discussion of our shared book.
- AT HOME At home, you could ask "how do you think that character feels? What makes you think so?" when reading or watching TV together.

Vocabulary

- STRENGTH [Name] uses interesting new words in speaking and writing.
- STRENGTH [Name] works out the meaning of new words from the words around them.
- ON TRACK [Name] is learning new words from their reading and is starting to use them in their writing.
- ON TRACK [Name] asks about new words and is getting better at working out their meaning.
- NEXT STEP Our next step is working out the meaning of new words and using them in their own writing, which we're practicing by collecting new words from our class reading.
- AT HOME At home, you could talk about interesting words you come across together and try using them in conversation.

Reading habits and choosing books

- STRENGTH [Name] reads widely and chooses books across different genres.
- STRENGTH [Name] is enthusiastic about books and shares recommendations with the class.
- ON TRACK [Name] reads regularly and is trying books from new genres.
- ON TRACK [Name] is building a regular reading habit and is starting to choose books with more confidence.
- NEXT STEP Our next step is reading for twenty minutes a day and trying a wider range of books, which we're practicing with time for independent reading and book recommendations.
- AT HOME At home, you could visit the library together and let [Name] choose books that interest them.

Speaking and listening

- STRENGTH [Name] shares ideas clearly in class discussions and listens carefully to others.
- STRENGTH [Name] speaks confidently in front of the class and builds on what others say.
- ON TRACK [Name] contributes to discussions and is growing in confidence when speaking to the class.
- ON TRACK [Name] listens well and is learning to build on what others say.
- NEXT STEP Our next step is sharing their ideas in class discussions and building on what others say, which we're practicing with talk partners and sentence starters.
- AT HOME At home, you could talk at mealtimes about the best part of the day, and ask follow-up questions.

Nonfiction and research

- STRENGTH [Name] finds information quickly using headings, contents pages and indexes.
- STRENGTH [Name] reads nonfiction confidently and takes clear notes.
- ON TRACK [Name] uses headings and pictures to find information and is learning to take notes.
- ON TRACK [Name] reads nonfiction and is learning to pick out the key facts.
- NEXT STEP Our next step is finding key facts in nonfiction and taking short notes, which we're practicing with our topic research projects.
- AT HOME At home, you could read a nonfiction book or website together about something [Name] is interested in.

Handwriting

- STRENGTH [Name] writes neatly and clearly, and their handwriting is easy to read.
- STRENGTH [Name] has clear, consistent handwriting and takes pride in presentation.
- ON TRACK [Name] writes legibly and is learning to keep letters a consistent size.
- ON TRACK [Name] is developing a neater, more consistent handwriting style.
- NEXT STEP Our next step is keeping their handwriting neat and consistent in longer pieces, which we're practicing with short handwriting warm-ups.
- AT HOME At home, you could ask [Name] to write a list, card or note for the family now and then.

Spelling

- STRENGTH [Name] spells accurately, including longer and less common words.
- STRENGTH [Name] applies spelling patterns and rules confidently in their writing.
- ON TRACK [Name] spells most common words correctly and is learning new spelling patterns each week.
- ON TRACK [Name] spells well in spelling tests and is starting to carry that into their writing.
- NEXT STEP Our next step is using the spelling patterns we learn each week in their everyday writing, which we're practicing with weekly spelling patterns and practice.
- AT HOME At home, you could practice this week's spelling words in a quick game, a few minutes at a time.

Sentences and punctuation

- STRENGTH [Name] uses a wide range of punctuation accurately, including commas and apostrophes.
- STRENGTH [Name] writes varied sentences that start in different ways, which makes their writing interesting to read.
- ON TRACK [Name] uses capital letters and periods accurately and is learning to use commas.
- ON TRACK [Name] writes in full sentences and is learning to vary how they start.
- NEXT STEP Our next step is using commas and apostrophes accurately, which we're practicing with short daily grammar warm-ups.
- AT HOME At home, you could write a short note or message together and check the punctuation.

Planning and organizing writing

- STRENGTH [Name] organizes writing into clear paragraphs with a strong opening and ending.
- STRENGTH [Name] plans carefully and builds their ideas logically through a piece.
- ON TRACK [Name] plans before writing and is learning to group ideas into paragraphs.
- ON TRACK [Name] writes with a clear beginning and is working on a strong ending.
- NEXT STEP Our next step is organizing writing into paragraphs, each with one main idea, which we're practicing with planning frames.
- AT HOME At home, you could ask [Name] to tell you the plan for a story before writing it.

Ideas and detail

- STRENGTH [Name] writes imaginative stories with vivid description.
- STRENGTH [Name] adds detail and description that bring their writing to life.
- ON TRACK [Name] has good ideas and is learning to add more detail and description.
- ON TRACK [Name] is starting to use describing words and is learning to show how characters feel.
- NEXT STEP Our next step is adding detail and description, showing rather than telling, which we're practicing by looking at examples from books we read together.
- AT HOME At home, you could ask [Name] to describe something using all five senses.

Checking and improving writing

- STRENGTH [Name] rereads their work and makes thoughtful improvements.
- STRENGTH [Name] checks their writing carefully and corrects their own mistakes.
- ON TRACK [Name] is learning to reread their writing and fix mistakes.
- ON TRACK [Name] makes some corrections and is building a habit of checking their work.
- NEXT STEP Our next step is rereading their writing to check it makes sense and fixing mistakes, which we're practicing with a simple editing checklist.
- AT HOME At home, you could ask [Name] to read a piece of writing aloud to you and find one thing to improve.

Opinion and persuasive writing

- STRENGTH [Name] states a clear opinion and backs it up with good reasons.
- STRENGTH [Name] writes persuasive pieces that convince the reader with reasons and examples.
- ON TRACK [Name] states an opinion clearly and is learning to give more reasons.
- ON TRACK [Name] gives reasons for their opinion and is learning to add examples.
- NEXT STEP Our next step is backing up an opinion with reasons and examples, which we're practicing with model texts and planning frames.
- AT HOME At home, you could have friendly debates at dinner ("which is the best pet?") and ask for three reasons.

Speaking and listening

- STRENGTH [Name] shares ideas clearly in class discussions and listens carefully to others.
- STRENGTH [Name] speaks confidently in front of the class and builds on what others say.
- ON TRACK [Name] contributes to discussions and is growing in confidence when speaking to the class.
- ON TRACK [Name] listens well and is learning to build on what others say.
- NEXT STEP Our next step is sharing their ideas in class discussions and building on what others say, which we're practicing with talk partners and sentence starters.
- AT HOME At home, you could talk at mealtimes about the best part of the day, and ask follow-up questions.

Grades 6–8

Reading aloud

- STRENGTH [Name] reads aloud confidently and with expression, even with challenging texts.
- STRENGTH [Name] reads complex texts smoothly and adjusts their pace to suit the text.
- ON TRACK [Name] reads aloud clearly and is building confidence with longer, harder texts.
- ON TRACK [Name] reads accurately and is working on pace and expression with more challenging texts.
- NEXT STEP Our next step is reading challenging texts aloud with confidence and expression, which we're practicing with paired reading and short performance readings.
- AT HOME At home, you could ask [Name] to read a short article or recipe aloud now and then.

Understanding what they read

- STRENGTH [Name] summarizes complex texts accurately and identifies the central idea.
- STRENGTH [Name] understands challenging texts and explains how ideas develop across a chapter or article.
- ON TRACK [Name] identifies the main idea of a text and is learning to summarize it concisely.
- ON TRACK [Name] follows the main argument of a text and is building confidence with more challenging reading.
- NEXT STEP Our next step is summarizing a text in their own words and identifying the central idea, which we're practicing with short written summaries and discussion.
- AT HOME At home, you could ask [Name] to explain the main point of a news article or video you've both seen.

Reading between the lines

- STRENGTH [Name] makes insightful inferences and supports them with well-chosen quotations.
- STRENGTH [Name] reads between the lines and explains what the author is suggesting.
- ON TRACK [Name] makes reasonable inferences and is learning to support them with quotations.
- ON TRACK [Name] is starting to explain what a writer suggests, not only what happens.
- NEXT STEP Our next step is backing up an inference with a short quotation and an explanation, which we're practicing with sentence frames for explaining evidence.
- AT HOME At home, you could talk about a film or show together and ask why a character made a particular choice.

Vocabulary

- STRENGTH [Name] uses precise, ambitious vocabulary in discussion and writing.
- STRENGTH [Name] works out the meaning of unfamiliar words from context and word parts.
- ON TRACK [Name] is learning new words from their reading and is starting to use them in their writing.
- ON TRACK [Name] asks about new words and is getting better at working out their meaning.
- NEXT STEP Our next step is working out the meaning of new words and using them in their own writing, which we're practicing by collecting new words from our class reading.
- AT HOME At home, you could talk about interesting words you come across together and try using them in conversation.

Reading habits and choosing books

- STRENGTH [Name] reads widely and chooses books across different genres.
- STRENGTH [Name] is enthusiastic about books and shares recommendations with the class.
- ON TRACK [Name] reads regularly and is trying books from new genres.
- ON TRACK [Name] is building a regular reading habit and is starting to choose books with more confidence.
- NEXT STEP Our next step is reading for twenty minutes a day and trying a wider range of books, which we're practicing with time for independent reading and book recommendations.
- AT HOME At home, you could visit the library together and let [Name] choose books that interest them.

Nonfiction and research

- STRENGTH [Name] researches topics independently and judges whether a source is reliable.
- STRENGTH [Name] reads nonfiction critically and compares information from different sources.
- ON TRACK [Name] finds relevant information and is learning to judge whether a source is reliable.
- ON TRACK [Name] takes notes from nonfiction and is learning to put ideas in their own words.
- NEXT STEP Our next step is checking whether a source is reliable and putting research in their own words, which we're practicing with short research tasks in class.
- AT HOME At home, you could look at a news story together and talk about how you'd check it's true.

Analyzing texts

- STRENGTH [Name] analyzes how writers use language and structure to create effects.
- STRENGTH [Name] writes thoughtful responses about theme and character, using evidence from the text.
- ON TRACK [Name] comments on the writer's choices and is learning to explain their effect.
- ON TRACK [Name] identifies themes in a text and is learning to support their ideas with evidence.
- NEXT STEP Our next step is explaining how a writer's word choices create an effect on the reader, which we're practicing with close reading of short extracts and modeled paragraphs.
- AT HOME At home, you could ask [Name] what message a book, song or film is trying to get across, and why.

Spelling

- STRENGTH [Name] spells accurately, even with ambitious vocabulary.
- STRENGTH [Name] spells accurately and checks unfamiliar words carefully.
- ON TRACK [Name] spells most words correctly and is learning to check tricky ones.
- ON TRACK [Name] spells accurately in most writing and is working on a few commonly confused words.
- NEXT STEP Our next step is checking spellings carefully when editing, especially commonly confused words, which we're practicing with a personal spelling list.
- AT HOME At home, you could help [Name] keep a short list of tricky words to check when proofreading.

Sentences and punctuation

- STRENGTH [Name] controls sentence structure confidently and uses a range of punctuation for effect.
- STRENGTH [Name] varies sentence length and structure to suit their purpose.
- ON TRACK [Name] punctuates accurately and is learning to vary sentence structure.
- ON TRACK [Name] uses commas and apostrophes correctly and is moving on to semicolons and colons.
- NEXT STEP Our next step is varying sentence structure and using semicolons and colons accurately, which we're practicing by studying model sentences from our class texts.
- AT HOME At home, you could encourage [Name] to read their writing aloud to hear where the punctuation should go.

Planning and organizing writing

- STRENGTH [Name] structures essays clearly, with well-developed paragraphs and smooth transitions.
- STRENGTH [Name] plans carefully and links ideas logically across a longer piece.
- ON TRACK [Name] organizes ideas into paragraphs and is learning to link them with transitions.
- ON TRACK [Name] plans before writing and is building confidence with longer essays.
- NEXT STEP Our next step is linking paragraphs with clear transitions in longer essays, which we're practicing with essay planning templates and model essays.
- AT HOME At home, you could ask [Name] to talk you through the plan for an essay before starting to write.

Ideas and detail

- STRENGTH [Name] writes with a strong, individual voice and engaging ideas.
- STRENGTH [Name] develops ideas in depth with well-chosen detail.
- ON TRACK [Name] has thoughtful ideas and is learning to develop them in more depth.
- ON TRACK [Name] writes clearly and is learning to add detail that keeps the reader interested.
- NEXT STEP Our next step is developing ideas in depth, with detail that supports their point, which we're practicing by looking at examples from books we read together.
- AT HOME At home, you could encourage [Name] to keep a journal or write about a topic that interests them.

Checking and improving writing

- STRENGTH [Name] revises drafts thoughtfully, improving both ideas and accuracy.
- STRENGTH [Name] proofreads carefully and acts on feedback to improve each draft.
- ON TRACK [Name] proofreads for errors and is learning to revise ideas as well.
- ON TRACK [Name] acts on feedback and is building a habit of revising drafts.
- NEXT STEP Our next step is revising drafts to improve ideas and organization, not only correcting errors, which we're practicing with peer feedback and editing checklists.
- AT HOME At home, you could ask [Name] to read an essay aloud before handing it in and spot one improvement.

Argument writing

- STRENGTH [Name] builds strong arguments with clear claims and well-chosen evidence.
- STRENGTH [Name] writes convincing arguments and answers the opposing view.
- ON TRACK [Name] makes a clear claim and is learning to support it with evidence.
- ON TRACK [Name] writes arguments with reasons and is learning to answer the opposing view.
- NEXT STEP Our next step is supporting claims with evidence and explaining how it proves the point, which we're practicing with debates and model essays.
- AT HOME At home, you could discuss a topic in the news together and ask [Name] for reasons and evidence.

Speaking and listening

- STRENGTH [Name] shares ideas clearly in class discussions and listens carefully to others.
- STRENGTH [Name] speaks confidently in front of the class and builds on what others say.
- ON TRACK [Name] contributes to discussions and is growing in confidence when speaking to the class.
- ON TRACK [Name] listens well and is learning to build on what others say.
- NEXT STEP Our next step is sharing their ideas in class discussions and building on what others say, which we're practicing with talk partners and sentence starters.
- AT HOME At home, you could talk at mealtimes about the best part of the day, and ask follow-up questions.

Reading and writing phrases to avoid, rewritten

Instead of	Write
Maya is a reluctant reader.	Maya is choosing short graphic novels and reading a little more each week.
Leo is a poor speller.	Leo spells most common words correctly and is learning this week's spelling pattern.
Amara's handwriting is messy.	Amara is working on keeping her letters a consistent size in longer pieces.
Ethan hates writing.	Ethan writes more when the topic is his own choice, and short writing goals are helping.
Sofia is reading at Level M.	Sofia reads short chapter books on her own and is moving on to longer ones.
Noah has a Lexile of 520L.	Noah reads books with short chapters confidently and is starting to try longer ones.
Grace can't blend CVC words.	Grace knows most letter sounds and is learning to blend them to read short words such as cat and ship.
Omar needs to work on his digraphs.	Omar is learning the sounds that two letters make together, such as sh, ch and th.
Lily uses fronted adverbials and expanded noun phrases.	Lily starts sentences in different ways ("Later that day,") and adds detail to describe things ("the old, creaky gate").
Kai is in the bottom reading group.	Kai is reading simple books with growing confidence and is becoming smoother each week.
Zoe is a better reader than most of the class.	Zoe reads longer books smoothly and makes thoughtful predictions using clues from the text.
Sam is not a natural writer.	Sam has good ideas and is learning to add more detail and description.
Isla never reads at home.	At home, ten minutes of reading together at bedtime would really help Isla.
Jack's dyslexia makes spelling hard.	Jack is using his spelling list to check tricky words when he edits. (Talk about any support plan with the family in person.)
Priya's writing is below grade level.	Priya is learning to plan her ideas before writing; we're working on this with planning frames, and I'll share how it's going at conferences.
Ben is an ELL student, so his vocabulary is limited.	Ben is learning new words from our class reading and is starting to use them in his writing.
Ruby always rushes her writing.	Ruby sometimes rushes, so our next step is rereading her writing to check it makes sense.
Maya decodes well but her comprehension is weak.	Maya sounds out new words confidently and is learning to retell the main events of a story in order.
Leo should know his sight words by now.	Leo reads many sight words instantly and is learning new ones each week.
Amara is a bookworm and a joy to have in class.	Amara reads widely and shares book recommendations with the class.
Ethan's guided reading level is J and his DRA is 18.	Ethan reads simple chapter books on his own and is working on reading them with more expression.
Sofia copied parts of her essay from a website.	Don't write it. Talk to the family first and follow your school's policy.

262 lines. Free from polytheseus.com/teacher-skills/guides/report-card-comments-for-reading-and-writing, where a free builder puts them together and checks the wording. Drafted with AI help: read every line against what you know of the student before using it.